

BAY JAZZ PROJECT

“Bay Jazz Project is a true testament to the talent of the Mid-Atlantic music scene.”

— Music Monthly

Energetic, dynamic, and versatile, Bay Jazz Project is a jazz quartet led by pianist Sean Lane and features some of the most exciting and experienced musicians in the region. Sean, one of the area’s most accomplished jazz keyboard/pianists, is known for his fluid, graceful performance style. Along with Lane, the band features reed man Seth Kibel, one of the Mid-Atlantic region’s foremost instrumentalists, bassist Bob Abbott, with a creative approach to his instrument and unique musicality, and drummer Mark Lucas, an insightful musician no matter the genre.

The group was a crowd favorite as one of the finalists chosen to compete in the inaugural Chick Webb Jazz Combo Competition, at Baltimore’s Artscape!

“You can feel the connection the musicians make with each other as they play around, against and with each other.”

Chesapeake Music Guide

With the addition of premier Washington, DC trumpeter/vocalist Justine Miller, the group takes on another dimension! She brings her soulful blend of vocals and electric trumpet playing to the stage which always leaves audiences wanting more!

The Washington Post calls Miller's music making “Searing Hot and Superb!”

Bay Jazz Project continues to perform jazz standards and original music at a variety of venues. Public appearances include Rams Head on Stage, Frederick Festival of the Arts, 49 West, Rehoboth Beach Jazz Festival, and Wine in the Woods at Merriweather Post Pavilion, to name a few. Comfortably playing classic jazz at an intimate setting or hitting some funky original jazz tunes at a festival, Bay Jazz Project is versatile, professional, and entertaining regardless of the setting.

“Folks in the Baltimore/Washington music scene are luckier than the rest of us, they’ve been enjoying the vibrant, eclectic jazz pianist Sean Lane and Bay Jazz Project for over a decade. Check Lane out!”
